

US: Netflix's 'Tiger King' songwriter Vince Johnson signs global publishing agreement with BMG

Vince Johnson, one of the songwriters behind the music of the sensational hit Netflix show Tiger King, has signed a global publishing agreement with BMG to administer his songs in the show including 'I Saw a Tiger' and 'My First Love', as well as new recordings not featured in the show, including the new song 'Killer Carole'.

Interest in the music has skyrocketed since the show premiered, becoming a worldwide phenomenon, racking up more than 34 million views in the first ten days it was available for streaming.

"The team at BMG impressed me with their faith in my songwriting. We look forward to a long relationship with them," Johnson said.

Johnson's songs perfectly evoke the themes of Tiger King and were written after discussion with 'Joe Exotic', the now incarcerated former owner and operator of the Greater Wynnewood Exotic Animal Park (a.k.a. G. W. Zoo) in Oklahoma, whose story the show is based on. As a songwriter, he has previously partnered with producers and singers to create memorable recordings of his songs. The songs were originally produced as The Clinton/Johnson band, but Johnson's partner, Daniel Clinton passed away late last year.
